

The Matronly Princess

by Ruth Millett
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Women's Wear Daily," which speaks for the American fashion industry, turned up its editorial nose at the clothes selected by Princess Margaret for her recent visit to the United States.

Millett

Perhaps the princess didn't know that in America it is considered a fashion faux pas for a matron to look like a matron.

My dictionary says that a matron is a "wife or a widow, especially one that has borne children," and that matronly means "like or befitting a matron."

Well, if Princess Margaret, being a wife and mother, chose clothes befitting a matron that would seem only logical and proper—anywhere but in the United States.

But here we reverse things. Little girls are encouraged to look like little ladies, with permanent waves and styles that ape mama's.

But women are encouraged to look like little girls, or, at least, to try to. And Princess Margaret certainly didn't look like a little girl, or like a woman who was trying to. Her daytime dresses covered her knees. She wore heels instead of flats. Her evening clothes were womanly. Even her hairdo looked her age.

In fact, the princess looked so refreshingly young-matronly that instead of our criticizing her we should be taking lessons.

If college girls want to wear their dresses above their knees and go in for high boots and weird hairdos, that's fine. If they think the little girl look is cute, so it is on them.

But for mature women—matrons, if you will—to try to copy the little girl look only makes them look ridiculous.

The American matron would look a whole lot better if the fashion industry hadn't sold her on the idea that looking matronly was the last way in the world a matron ought to look.

Safety First

by Susan Light, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: My problem may seem small, but it has given me a lot of sleepless nights. Nights when I've gotten up a dozen times to give my child cough syrup or put on the vaporizer. Any mother who has sat up with a sick child knows what I mean.

Most of these illnesses I can trace to fire drills at school. My little girl catches cold easily, especially when she gets chilled. Several times lately she has stood outside in below-freezing weather without even a sweater to keep her warm. She says the teacher won't let the children get their coats. I know fire drills are necessary, but is it necessary to schedule them on bad days? Isn't a child's health important, too?—TIRE D MOTHER

ANSWER: I can appreciate your sentiments about fire drills. I've sat up, too. But to be effective, fire drills must necessarily simulate the real thing. If the school were actually burning down, I'm sure you wouldn't want your child to take time to put on her coat, hat and boots before getting out of the building.

I believe most schools take weather into consideration when scheduling a fire drill. When a fire inspector arrives unexpectedly, however, they naturally have no alternative. The drill must be held during his tour of inspection, without warning. Occasionally a child sets off a false alarm, either as a prank or by accident.

Recently I heard of a case where several parents called the school and complained after their children were sent outside without coats in a freezing drizzle. What these parents didn't know was that the so-called fire drill was triggered by a real emergency. For the sake of the children's safety, it was necessary to get them out of the building fast.

Be thankful your school is safety-conscious. Your child may suspect her susceptibility to colds in the future. And the school wants to make doubly sure she HAS a future.

DEAR MRS. LIGHT: You mentioned a catalogue one could send for concerning home study courses for housewives. I cut out the address but lost it. Will you please publish it again?—AMBITIOUS HOUSEWIFE

ANSWER: Write to the Women's Institute for Continuing Study, International Correspondence Schools, Scranton, Pa. 18515.

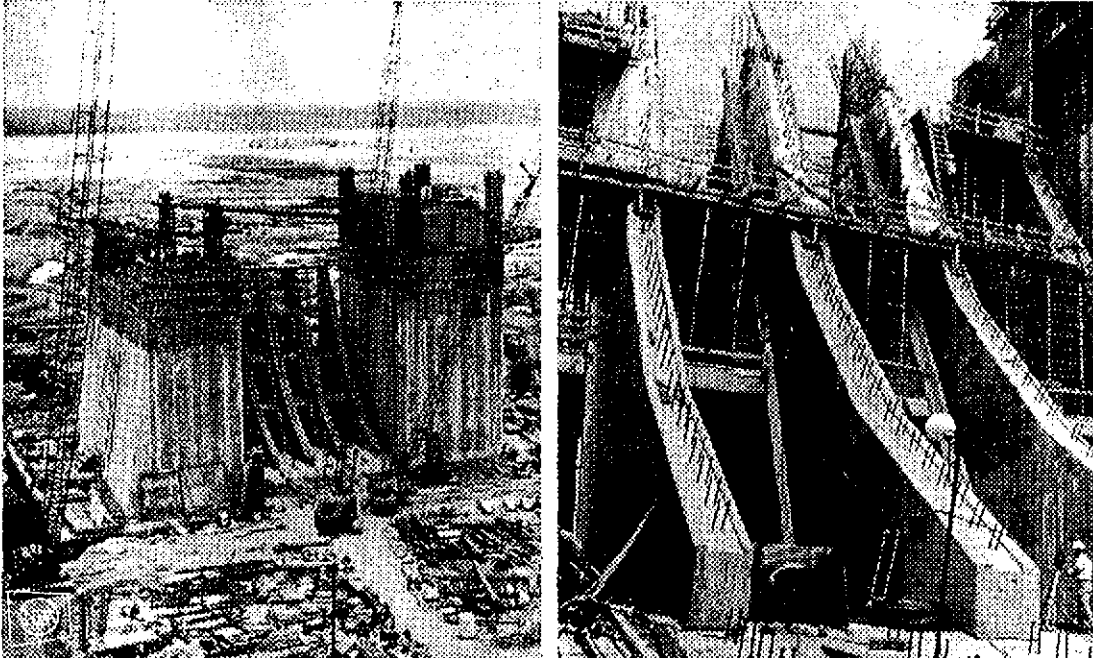

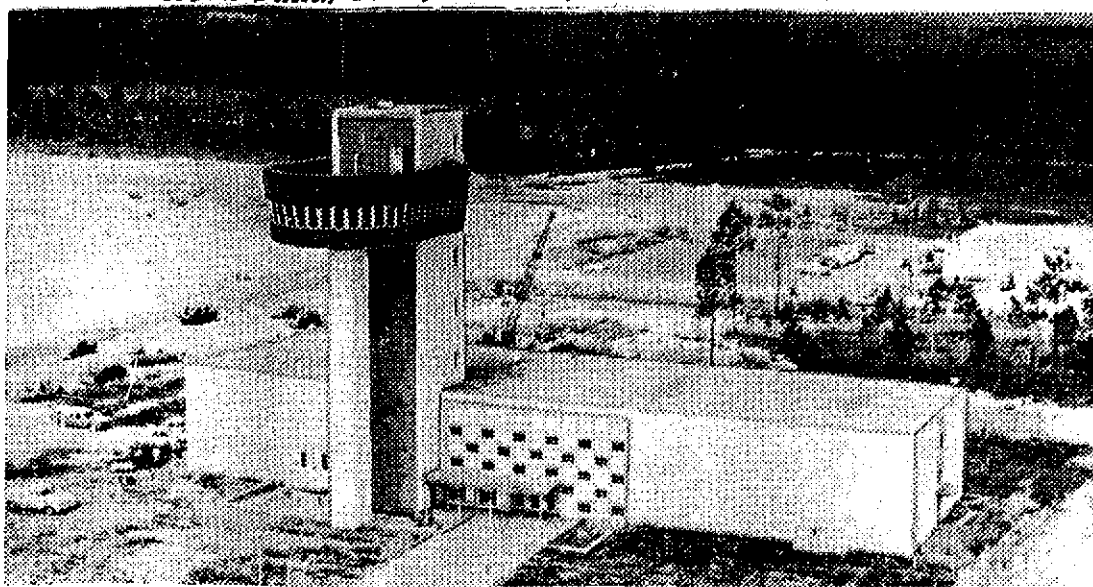

Even youths born in the 1940s are familiar with milk baths popularized by such film stars as Pola Negri and Claudette Colbert. Now the milk bath comes into the home, but not via a late, late movie on television. A special milk bath contains ingredients found in milk, plus emollients and lubricants to soothe thirsty skins. Dump a tablespoon or two (left) into a tub of water for a fragrant blue foam. After the bath, smooth on an enriched body cream (center) containing additional lubricants. Massage on legs and feet, especially susceptible to drying wintry elements. For a final fragrant touch dust on (right) an after-bath dusting powder with a special applicator.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Emotional Disturbances Can Bother Even Babies

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—In a recent column you said that all children with ulcerative colitis are emotionally disturbed but that this might be either the cause or the result of the disease. I had this disease when I was 22 months old. Is it possible to be emotionally disturbed at that age? How would you define an emotional disturbance? Is it permanent?

A—A baby can be emotionally disturbed as soon as he can tell the difference between pleasure and pain, and that is pretty young. I can't think of anything that would be more likely to cause an emotional disturbance or to aggravate one already existing than a bout of ulcerative colitis.

I would define an emotional disturbance as any reaction against an unpleasant experience. This can, of course, take a wide variety of forms, ranging from negativism (refusing to talk or take any part in the life going on about one) to violent outbursts of temper.

Since everyone has such reactions at times, it is a blessing that they are not permanent but are usually of short duration. Only when they are inordinately prolonged is there any need to worry about the victim's mental health.

Q—When my family and I get up in the morning, we are just as tired as when we went to bed. We get a good eight hours sleep every night but it doesn't seem to do any good. What causes this and what would you suggest we do?

A—Some people are described as the morning type. They bound out of bed in the morning full of renewed vigor. They usually wilt in the early evening and can't take late hours. Others—evening type—have a hard time getting started in the morning but gather momentum as the day progresses. They usually hate to go to bed at night. These people are often completely dependent on their morning cup of coffee and it does seem to help them get going, however reluctantly.

I know of no way to change a person from one of these types to the other. Learning to relax completely when you go to bed should be helpful. To do this, it is essential first to learn to differentiate between how your muscles feel when they are tense and when they are relaxed. Then you must practice relaxing by lying flat on your back. When you feel tension in a muscle and can't relax it, try tensing it to the maximum, then let it go limp. It is most important to learn to relax the muscles around your eyes, ears and larynx.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Special Products Allow Wig Care

More women wear wigs each year. In most instances it is best to have a professional clean and block a wig. However, cleaning can be done at home with good results if instructions are carefully followed, according to Sara of Ila in New York. Most important: Never use soap and water on a wig. It shrinks the netting and mats the hair. Use products made especially for wig care, recommended by beauticians and wig specialists. Clean the wig (left) with the proper liquid and work the liquid through the wig from base to ends with your fingers. Place on towel or headblock to dry. Apply a wig set solution and set hair. Comb or brush gently (center) but avoid digging into the wig foundation. A special wig luster sprays on (right) to keep hair-piece gleaming and lustrous.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — Even though she has only one leg, 13-year-old Kathy Waite hopes to win Oregon's roller-skating championship again.

Kathy won the title last year on two legs, but since then one of her legs was amputated. Three weeks after the operation, she was back on the rink, using crutches.

When a news story appeared that she would return to competitive skating, she received 300 letters.

Among them were donations totaling $558 with which she plans to buy an artificial leg.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Singer Kate Smith is under treatment for a respiratory infection at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

The 56-year-old entertainer, who was admitted to the hospital Sunday, was supposed to have opened Monday night at a new theater in suburban West Covina.

The opening was postponed until Friday.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Prince Charles, 17-year-old heir to the British throne, will get something less than royal treatment when he arrives next month at the Timberport School in the mountains 140 miles northeast of Melbourne.

"The first thing Prince Charles will learn is the art of bush fire fighting and prevention," Headmaster Thomas R. Garnett said Monday at the school.

"If there's a bush fire he will have to go out with the rest of the boys and help fight it. He will be exposed to the same disciplines as anybody else," Garnett said.

Like 135 others, the prince will wear jeans, an open shirt, sweater, sneakers, a slouch hat and boots during a 14-week term at the school.

SACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter says surgeons probably will have to remove a callus from his left arm before he can be considered for another space flight.

One of the seven original astronauts, Carpenter broke an arm in a motorcycle accident in 1964 in Bermuda. He said the accident caused a callus to form on the bone just before the elbow.

"The doctor is not too confident it (the surgery) will work and I'm not too confident the doctor will do it," he said in an interview Monday.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A Johns Hopkins Medical School research team has concluded after a 13-year study that a "significant number" of premature infants later grow up to be less effective students than normal infants.

Dr. Gerald Wiener and Dr. Paul Harper said "contrary to the old wives tale that premature babies catch up, there is no evidence that this is so."

In a study of 992 patients in several Baltimore hospitals, the researchers found that IQ scores were about three points less than those of normal children at the age of six. By three or more years later, the IQ gap had widened to 5.5 points, said the researchers.

The study, financed by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said arithmetic skill was more impaired than reading skill — possibly, they said, because reading problems don't show up as readily at an early age.

The researchers said their findings held true for both Negro and White children in the 492 infants of less than 5½ pounds compared to the remaining control group of normal children.

The researchers said they also found "flaws in comprehension and abstract reasoning, poor gross motor development, immature speech and (and) impaired IQ" in a significant number of premature children.

Wiener said medical science "knows that the incidence of prematurity is higher among low socio-economic classes." He said about 10 per cent of all babies are born prematurely.

He said the rate is up to 30 per cent among certain population groups.

Last June, when the investigative phase of the project was complete, the average subject should have reached the seventh grade at age 12 or 13.

But results showed that only 46.1 per cent of the premature had reached this academic level, compared to 56.4 for the normal-birth control group.

Wiener, a clinical psychologist, and Harper, a medical doctor, report their findings in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Tried to Talk Her Out of Her Dream

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Every body tried to talk Sylvia Caduff out of her dream of conducting symphony orchestras.

A woman looks ungainly on a podium, they told her in her home town of Chur, Switzerland.

How could she get the men in the orchestra to take her direction, asked friends in Lucerne where she was studying piano. What audience would treat her seriously?

As a clincher they always ended triumphantly: Name just one woman conductor on the staff of a major symphony orchestra.

Now the slim brunette has an answer: Sylvia Caduff, with the New York Philharmonic, an assistant conductor to Leonard Bernstein.

"I'm so happy, so happy," she says, which just about takes care of her working English vocabulary at the moment. She hopes to be proficient, though, by next fall when her stint in New York begins.

Sylvia, 28, was a piano teacher in Lucerne—a fine profession for a woman, everybody thought—until she came to New York early in January for the Dimitri Mitropoulos International Competition.

"I brought my little fur lion along," she said through an interpreter. "I had it with me when I was studying conducting in Berlin at the conservatory and with Herbert von Karajan from 1962-64. I think it brings me luck."

She also carried the baton she had used in reaching the finals in a couple of international conducting competitions in Italy and Denmark. She would rather borrow someone's toothbrush than use another baton.

The Mitropoulos competition started with 34 contestants from 18 countries, including two women—Sylvia and one from Peru.

Only Sylvia and six young men survived the finals, in Carnegie Hall before a capacity crowd.

After the jury of distinguished conductors made their decisions Jan. 17, Bernstein announced the results. Sylvia was one of the four first-place winners.

Two nights later, after the four conducted the New York Philharmonic in Philharmonic Hall, Bernstein announced their new posts: Three, including Sylvia, would assist him with the Philharmonic next season, the fourth would go to Washington's National Symphony.

Next fall Sylvia should brighten the New York music scene considerably. She rarely uses makeup, and with her 5-foot-4 boyishly slim figure, brown eyes and dark hair cut in a short pageboy, she could be called winsomely cute—a description that would horrify her if she understood it in English.

She is an intense, no-nonsense, talented professional—from the expert way she handles the baton. "You use it as an extension of the arm, in the right hand for tempo; the left hand is for expression," to her demure long black dress, purposefully unobtrusive so as not to distract from the orchestra and music.

While some masculine conductors may stomp, gyrate and flail the air, Sylvia maintains an easy graceful stance.

Although she gets along fine with male colleagues, she's not overly eager to get married right away.

"I'm always in love," she says. But she's not engaged.

HELEN HELP US!

—by Helen Bottel—

"Male Change of Life"

Dear Helen: Until he reached 50, my husband was the finest man in the world. Dependable, loving, true, a good family man. Our marriage was one of the best, in every way. Oh, of course we had our troubles, but we worked them out. We were able to talk to each other.

But now everything has changed. First he became morose and withdrawn. Then he started staying out till all hours. I discovered he has taken up with a woman who takes up with anyone available. He won't come near me. The one time we talked about it he said he was no good and I should leave him, that he wasn't worthy of me.

He either snaps at the children or ignores them, and when he's home he sits for hours staring at the wall.

He won't see a counselor. If I mention it (seldom), he gets furious and stamps out of the house — to HER.

How can a man change so completely? — Mrs. S. J. O.

Dear Helen: What's wrong with a man who always liked everybody, but now, in his 50's, sees nothing good about anyone. He evidently thinks he is the only one who is above reproach. He sees dirt in everything, even a boy looking at a girl as she walks down the street. He reads the worst kind of trash, just so he can rave about how awful it is. That's all he talks about — the filth in the world. He wasn't like this before. What is happening? — Sad Wife

Dear Mrs. O., Sad Wife, and all you other baffled, worried, unhappy wives of once-wonderful men:

Your husbands are going through the male "change of life," and they need expert help. If they won't accept counseling, then insist they have medical check-ups (and alert your family doctors to the real trouble.)

When a man's power wanes (sometimes temporarily) it hits him all of a sudden that he is getting old — and this leads to strange behavior, deep gloom, or — usually — both. The one thing he won't do is discuss it with the person who could help him most: his wife. A doctor can make him see he's reached a perfectly normal slowdown, and when he stops worrying about himself, he'll come back to you, almost as good as new.

Leave It In Writing
 Dear Helen: My uncle always said he wanted to be cremated, have a very inexpensive funeral and keep things simple. But he died unexpectedly, and my aunt (who never treated him too well) evidently wanted to make up to him with an ornate funeral. I told her he wouldn't have approved, but she answered, "What will people think?"

So she spent several thousand dollars. That money could have been used to give herself an education she'll need to support herself.

This made me think: it does not do any good to SAY what you want in the way of a funeral because grief ruins good judgment and there's always the fear people will think you "aren't doing right" by the deceased. I'm adding a codicil to my will stating just what kind of simple funeral I want, and I've told my executor (everybody should have one!) to insist my wishes are carried out. That way no one can blame my survivors. — B. R.

Dear B: Excellent idea! I hope many readers will join my husband and me in following it. — H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was Billy Rose, if memory serves, who in pretelevision days remarked that everybody had two businesses — his own and show business.

When an important segment of show business moved into the nation's living rooms, everybody with access to a set became, one way or another, a critic.

Now even the respected publication, Parents Magazine, has gotten into the act. In the current issue, it presents a listing of programs, drawn up by the "evaluation committee" of the National Association for Better Radio and Television, which are recommended for children and another of shows it considered objectionable for children, and even a list of shows of "special interest for adult audiences."

A total of 35 shows — about one-third of the evening network output—is given the magazine's stamp of approval. They range from the obvious, like "Captain Kangaroo" and the Walt Disney Hour to some surprising choices, like "Combat" and "12 O'Clock High" but not for younger children and "The FBI" but only for those in their teens.

More interesting is the list of 30 shows the committee found objectionable for children. It includes many shows most adults fondly believed were primarily designed for young audiences; "Flipper" — a story themes abound in crime and involve youngsters in extremely dangerous situations, "The Adams Family" and "The Munsters" and "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." — "frightening in its vivid depiction of horror devices and situation."

The article also had some harsh things to say about "Daniel Boone" — "sometimes uses vicious, sadistic scenes" and even "Bonanza" — "too violent for youngsters."

Winter Is Spreading Over Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The coldest weather of the winter overspread much of the nation today and pressed hard-freeze conditions as far south as northern Florida.

The bitter cold spread zero temperatures over the heavy snow cove of part of the Middle Atlantic area where up to 15 inches of snow accumulated Wednesday and early Thursday from a storm which had passed out over the North Atlantic.

It dropped the mercury to 41 below zero at International Falls, Minn., and a record -16 at Milwaukee where the former low mark for the date was set at -13 in 1963. Minneapolis and St. Paul had -26 in the early hours of the day, and Chicago's official low was -10.

The frigid readings ran south from the northern Great Plains to Kansas and Missouri.

Readings moderated in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas after a light freeze early Thursday, but the northern Florida crop section had a hard freeze, although most citrus fruits have been harvested. The temperature in the area were in the 20s. The Lower Florida east coast vegetable farmers watched temperatures anxiously, ready to fire fallow fields if necessary to protect crops.

In snow-covered Virginia where four deaths were attributed to the snowstorm, one-fourth of the state's rural roads remained impassable and schools were closed. Hundreds of schools were closed also in North Carolina, Maryland and eastern Tennessee by the snow and cold.

The arctic air blowing over partly frozen waters of the Great Lakes caused snow squalls on the southeastern shores. Two inches of new snow fell at Sault Ste. Marie and Mokenag, Mich., and more than an inch was reported in the South Bend, Ind., and Cleveland areas.

The receding Atlantic storm shook six inches of snow on Old Town, Maine, today, bringing the ground cover thickness to 20 inches. Portland, Maine and Concord, N.H., had two inches of new snow.

In the Southwest, Weather Bureau experts watched with concern development of a new, potentially dangerous storm in the southern Rockies which headed into the southern Plains today. Hazardous - driving warnings were issued for Texas and Oklahoma in the expectation that the storm's move into extreme cold air would bring snow and sleet as well as rain over the area by tonight.

Falcon Coach Goes by Title of J. Jones

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The new head coach of the Atlanta Falcons sometimes goes by the name of J. Jones.

By now, those interested in National Football League affairs know that the Falcons' man is Norb Hecker.

He used the name "J. Jones" to keep secret Falcon owner Rankin Smith's selection of a new head coach.

"I felt like agent 007 coming into Atlanta," said Hecker, 38, who for the past six years has been assistant coach with the Green Bay Packers. "I thought the game was up on an airplane when a stewardess recognized me and said, 'Hello, Mr. Hecker.' But no one else found out."

Hecker wasted little time getting to work. He started calling friends Wednesday afternoon in a search for five assistant coaches.

He said he doesn't plan to move his wife and five children to Atlanta until school is out "because I'm going to be so busy I wouldn't have time to spend with them anyway."

Hecker was first contacted by the Falcons last Saturday, and was told Tuesday to fly to Atlanta so he could be introduced at a news conference Wednesday.

Hecker said that he feels Atlanta has some top college players on its roster, "and with the 42 players we will get from the other teams I believe we will have pretty good talent."

The former Baldwin-Wallace College star, who played halfback for the Los Angeles Rams and the Washington Redskins before a knee injury ended his NFL career in 1957, said he will first build a strong defense with the Falcons.

"You can't win in the NFL without a good defense," said Hecker, who has been defensive backfield coach for the Packers. "And it is easier to build a defense than an offense."

Hecker has been considered one of Packer Coach Vince Lombardi's top aides. But he lacks Lombardi's brooding intensity and is slow to anger.

"Norb has all the qualifications of a paragon," Lombardi said. "He is a very fine young gentleman, highly intelligent and with a fine personality. He is extremely loyal and one of the finest workers I have ever seen on my staff."

Lombardi, who recommended Hecker for the Atlanta coaching post, said he didn't know his former aide's coaching policy. "He's been coaching with mine and now he'll have to coach with his own," said Lombardi.

Teachers Lose to M. Branch

MARTIN, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee Martin Branch defeated Arkansas State Teachers College 77-70 Thursday night, despite ASTC hitting 62.8 per cent of its floor shots.

Ronnie Armstrong and Robert Barger led the Vols with 14 points each. John Lappe scored 19 for ASTC and Bill Johnson added 15.

Martin led 38-35 at halftime and went on to its sixth victory in 12 games. The Bears are now 15-4 for the year.

Arkansas Is Winner Over Mississippi S.

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Texas Western, a "tremendous" basketball team, appears certain to land a berth in either the NCAA or the NIT come tournament time in March.

The Miners from El Paso, sixth-ranked in The Associated Press college basketball poll, drubbed Arizona State 84-67 at Tempe, Ariz., Thursday night for their 13th straight victory and remained one of the country's two unbeaten major teams. Kentucky, No. 2 in the AP poll, also boasts a 13-0 record.

"This is a tremendous basketball team," said Ned Wulky, Arizona State coach. "It's a very well coached club with outstanding personnel. I was impressed with its depth and its exceptional quickness."

That is an outstanding endorsement of Coach Don Haskins' Miners who handed the Sun Devils their worst home defeat in 10 years. The Miners, whose victims include Iowa, Tulsa and Seattle, broke the game wide open with a 22-6 scoring spree early in the second half after leading 40-33 at halftime.

David (Daddy D) Lattin, 6-foot-6 sophomore, along with Orston Artis and Bobby Hill, led the attack that gave the Miners their first victory over the Sun Devils' court. Artis got 19 points, Lattin and Hill 18 each. Dennis Hamilton paced the Sun Devils with 24.

Houston, another leading independent, won its seventh in a row by defeating Texas Christian at Houston 100-79 behind 33 points by Elvin Hayes, a 6-8 soph. Hayes' effort, combined with 20 points by Joe Hamood, offset the 34 points scored by Gary Turner for TCU. Hayes also grabbed 27 rebounds and blocked six shots.

Utah State, Seattle, Wisconsin and Arkansas won intercollegiate games. Dennis O'Brien, with 28, and Les Powell, with 23, combined for 51 points to lead Utah State over LaSalle of Philadelphia 109-97 at Logan, Utah.

Seattle, also playing at home, whipped Creighton 99-84 behind 28 points by Tom Workman. Six of Workman's points came on three fast-break baskets early in the second half that put Seattle ahead for good after a 42-42 tie at halftime.

Wisconsin outlasted the Simmons 83-83 behind Ken Gustafson's 28 points at Madison, Wis. Arkansas, led by J. D. McConnell's 13 points, defeated Mississippi State 69-61 at Little Rock.

Pennel Is Disappointed at Failure

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The word most frequently heard around the Millrose Games was "disappointing."

"I'm terribly disappointed," said John Pennel after he failed in an attempt to raise his own indoor pole-vault record to 17 feet. "I thought for sure I had it on that third attempt."

"I'm disappointed in the time but happy with the victory," said Kenya's Kipchoge Keino after a paper-thin victory in the Wanamaker Mile in a dreary 4:03.9 Thursday night.

And Bill Crothers, the Canadian half-miler who had hoped to offer Keino a challenge in the mile was too disappointed to talk after finishing a badly beaten fifth.

All in all, the sell-out crowd of 14,000 that jammed Madison Square Garden for New York's first indoor track meet of the season had little to cheer about, even though the meet was packed with some of the world's best athletes.

In the end, a panel of sports writers picked Pennel as the outstanding athlete, off his 16-5 winning effort in the pole vault.

Belgium's Gaston Roelants, world record holder in the steeplechase, was second off an 8-40.6 victory in the two-mile and Fordham's Sam Perry was third in the voting after he finished the 60-yard dash in 6 seconds flat, a couple of inches in front of Darel Newman.

"I'm confident I can go 17 feet," Pennel said. "It's just a matter of time before I make it. I'll try again in Boston."

He and most of the others top athletes from the meet are scheduled to compete in the Boston A-A Games Saturday night. Keino is scheduled to go 100 miles in Boston, but still was awaiting clearance from Kenyan officials today.

Sessions of the Constitution Convention in 1787 were not open to the public but were not held in secret.

Braves Are Caught by Injunctions

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, caught between two state court injunctions, are going ahead with plans to play their 1966 home games in Atlanta.

Braves' President William C. Bartholomay said individual game tickets will go on sale Monday. Advance season ticket sales are nearing $1 million.

Bartholomay's remarks came Thursday despite a ruling by a Wisconsin judge minutes earlier that the baseball team must play its 1966 season in Milwaukee.

"The Braves," Bartholomay said, "will open the 1966 baseball season in Atlanta Stadium on April 12, 1966."

Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller of Milwaukee ordered the Braves to prepare to play their home games in Milwaukee this year until league expansion takes place with the city gaining a replacement franchise.

Opposing Roller's order is a temporary injunction issued Dec. 17 by Atlanta Judge Sam Phillips McKenzie ordering the Braves to fulfill a contract calling for home games in Atlanta.

Bartholomay noted both rulings and said McKenzie "has already ordered that the contract entered into by the Stadium Authority and the Braves is valid and binding."

"The Braves fully intend to honor our contract with the Stadium Authority and all our larger obligations to the citizens of Atlanta, of Georgia, and of the entire southeast, as the Braves have always honored our agreement with the county of Milwaukee."

"Until the Milwaukee order is reversed," Bartholomay said, "the Braves may be faced with the regrettable necessity of choosing which court to obey."

"It has always been the stated intent of the Braves to honor any and all orders issued by courts properly having jurisdiction to issue those orders."

"To play 1966 home games at any place other than Atlanta Stadium would be a direct breach of the order entered by the only court which has before it the Braves, the National Baseball League and the Stadium Authority."

The year's first $100,000-plus event heads Saturday's national thoroughbred card with 14 4-year-olds entered in the 1 1/4 miles of the Charles H. Strub Stakes at Santa Anita.

If all 14 start, the gross value will be $134,500 with the winner picking up $89,500.

The Poltex Stable's speed, Terry's Secret tops the field under high weight of 125 pounds. He'll be ridden by his regular jockey, Alex Maese.

Terry's Secret, winner of the Malibu Stakes at the West Coast track on New Year's Day, is expected to receive his toughest serious competition from Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Isle of Greece and John R. Gaines' Bold Leader.

Isle of Greece, conqueror of Terry's Secret in the San Fernando Stakes and "wrecked" up to the fleet Native 120, picks up 120 pounds. Bold Leader, winner of several California stakes last year after being sold by the Wheatley Stable, will carry 119 with Bill Shoemaker in the saddle. Walter Blum leads Isle of Greece.

Caveness Has Been Traded

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Former Arkansas linebacker Ronnie Caveness has been traded to the Houston Oilers as payment for the rights to Tulsa quarterback Billy Anderson, the Miami Dolphins announced Thursday.

Miami got Caveness from the Kansas City Chiefs in the player expansion draft.

Porkers in Win Over State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas continued its post-World War II mastery of basketball opponents in Little Rock games Thursday night when the Porkers belted Mississippi State 69-61.

It was Arkansas' 15th victory in 18 games it has played here since World War II.

J. D. McConnell scored 18 points to lead the Razorback attack in the intersectional battle as Arkansas won its ninth in 13 games. The defeat left the Bulldogs with a 7-7 record.

Wally Freeman scored 13 points and David Self added 12 for the Razorbacks, who never trailed. Arkansas led 33-24 at halftime.

Buddy Walden scored 15 points to lead State while Dave Williams and John Sopen added 14 each.

Chicago Bulls Start With No Name Players

By JERRY LISKA

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls, who snorted up $1.6 million to become the National Basketball Association's 10th will open as a starless outfit.

The Bulls, scheduled to play in the stockyards-centered International Amphitheatre, must start with a collection of 18 second-year NBA players and the 10th, 13th and 14th picks as their top three choices in the May NBA draft.

The new Chicago entry formally was certified by the NBA here Thursday.

The Bulls, backed by a five-man syndicate headed by Dick Klein, former Northwestern University cage star, can't possibly have a shot at such a sure-fire gate attraction as All-American Cazzie Russell of Michigan.

Russell, a Chicago native, is expected to be the first draft choice, either of New York or Detroit — whichever finishes last in the current NBA campaign.

Another potential box-office lure for the Bulls, Purdue's Dave Schellhase, the nation's top collegiate scorer, probably will be grabbed off long before the new Chicago entry gets its first pick in 10th and last position on the first round.

The Bulls get two players from each NBA member beyond seven "frozen" stars on each 12-man roster for a total of 18. The pool draw is around May 1.

The Bulls were welcomed to the NBA fold by Commissioner Walter Kennedy; owner Ben Kerner of the St. Louis Hawks, chairman of the League Expansion Committee; and President Franklin Miele of the San Francisco Warriors, representing the other league owners.

The $1.6 million covers the franchise and 18 player stockpile.

The Bulls will play in the NBA's Western Division, along with Los Angeles, St. Louis, San Francisco and Detroit. The Baltimore Bullets, shifted from Chicago in 1963, will switch from the Western to the Eastern Division, composed of Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia and New York.

Kennedy, who said Pittsburgh and Cleveland rated next if the NBA felt it could expand to 12 members "eventually," expressed confidence the new Chicago entry would be adequately stocked for NBA competition.

Klein said the Bull coach would be named after the current basketball season.

"We have a good one in mind but I can't say now whether he is a pro or college coach," said Klein.

Olympic Winner Buried at P. B.

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' only winner of two Olympic gold medals, William Arthur Carr, was buried in a simple ceremony Thursday in Pine Bluff, his boyhood hometown.

Carr died Jan. 11 in Tokyo, Japan, where he was employed by Proviso Safety Products.

Carr won the 400-meter dash with a record time of 45.2 in the 1920 Olympic Games at Los Angeles. He also achieved the winning 1,600-meter relay team which set an Olympic record.

An automobile accident ended Carr's career a year later.

Celtics Not Doing So Badly

The Boston Celtics, perennial champions of the National Basketball Association, aren't doing too badly in their new role of chasing the leader.

In their first game since being knocked out of the Eastern Division lead, the Celtics walloped the Detroit Pistons 131-112 Thursday night in the only NBA game.

The victory moved the Celtics to within one-half game of the Cincinnati Royals, who topped Boston from the top Tuesday night.

Bruins Score But Coach Cautious

BOSTON (AP) — Pit Martin of the Boston Bruins scored four goals against the Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night, took a deep breath and stayed a cautious man.

"I don't believe it," he said, despite the assurance of the official scorer and 13,909 frenzied fans who saw him do it. "I don't believe it and I'm not going to believe it 'till I see it in the papers."

The 22-year-old former Detroit Red Wing recalled scoring two goals in one game on two previous occasions. "But never a hat trick," he said, grinning, "and never four in one."

Give YOU Some Time thoughts

by Mrs. Muriel Lawrence, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I wonder if you think I should see a psychiatrist. Though I love my husband and our two lovely children, I am so restless and discontented. I hate the suburban community we live in because it means thinking of myself as a "young suburban housewife." I guess I should tell you that I was trained to become a concert pianist. What's wrong with me? Am I just a spoiled child? Mrs. Lawrence, please help me...

ANSWER: No, you're not a spoiled child. You're a musician who isn't making music.

So now I'm going to say to you, "Girl, make time to practice your music." And do you know what you're going to say back to me? "Are you crazy, Mrs. Lawrence? Time, indeed! You just don't know what you're talking about! Why, I don't have a moment of time that other people don't claim. I just don't have any time to practice my music. The only time I've got I have to spend being a 'young suburban housewife.'"

O.K. Go see your psychiatrist. But in the end, if his treatment is successful, all you're going to come out with is the courage to smash through alibis and resolve to be the person you are. Because that person includes a musician as well as a "young suburban housewife" you'll make time for her to practice her music. You'll make room for your whole self instead of letting the musician in you be squeezed into a dusty, narrow little corner.

Dr. Karen Horney was a distinguished woman psychoanalyst and teacher of psychoanalysis. She once wrote this: "We cannot develop our potentialities until we are willing to be truthful to ourselves."

By telling me you have no time to practice your music, you are not being truthful to yourself. You're just mad that your husband and children don't arrange the time for you. And I can't do a darn thing about that because our demand that other people solve our problems for us is so hidden from us that we can't recognize its voice when we say, "I can't make time to practice my music."

The expectation that somebody else should make time for us is so unreachable that we can't even see that our "restless discontent" is our fury that our husband and children don't arrange practice time for us the way mommy used to.

Truthful lips endure for ever, but a lying tongue is but for a moment.—Proverbs 12:19.

No man can, for any considerable time, wear one face to himself, and another to the multitude, without finally getting bewildered as to which is the true one.—Nathaniel Hawthorne, American novelist.

Pay all of them their dues, taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due, respect to whom respect is due, honor to whom honor is due.—Romans 13:7.

If we are to keep our democracy, there must be one commandment: "Thou shalt not ration justice."—Judge Learned Hand, American jurist.

Now may the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times in all ways. The Lord be with you all.—II Thess. 3:16.

The world will never have lasting peace so long as men reserve for war the finest human qualities. Peace, no less than war, requires idealism and self-sacrifice, and a righteous and dynamic faith. John Foster Dulles, former U.S. secretary of state.

"And you will know the truth and the truth will make you free."—John 8:32

The greatest and noblest pleasure which men can have in this world is to discover new truths; and the next is to shake off old prejudices.—Frederick the Great, King of Prussia.

The righteous flourish like the palm tree and grow like a cedar in Lebanon.—Psalms 92:12.

It is a fine thing to be honest, but it is also very important to be right.—Sir Winston Churchill.

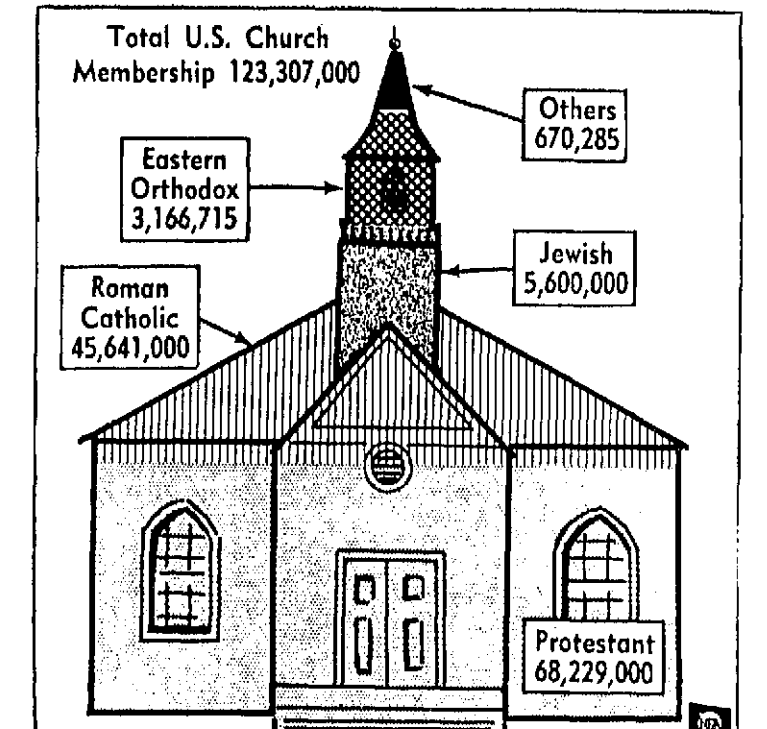

Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another.—I John 4:11.

There is a land of the living and a land of the dead, and the bridge is love.—Thornton Wilder, American novelist.

Then they returned, and prepared spices and ointments. On the sabbath they rested according to the commandment.—Luke 23:56.

As we keep or break the Sabbath, we nobly save or meanly lose the last best hope by which man rises.—Abraham Lincoln.

Some administrators in the Pentagon in other years took pride in knowing nothing about details. —Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown.

Religious membership, climbing at a faster rate than the nation's population, has reached highest point in history, according to figures compiled by the National Council of Churches for the 1966 Yearbook of American Churches. The current total is up about 2% from the previous year. Protestants make up more than half the total, but Roman Catholics are still the largest single denomination. Largest group in the "others" category is Buddhist, which jumped from 60,000 to 110,000 in a year largely because of inclusion of figures for Hawaii for the first time. Flaw in the otherwise rosy religious picture is attendance, down to 45% of membership on an average Sunday from 46% the year before.

Average Miles Per Year

Category	Average Miles Per Year
Cars	9,421
Buses	34,718
School & Free Buses	7,759
Trucks	10,694

AVERAGE EACH VEHICLE: 9,694

BUSY BUSES—Although buses are the smallest major category vehicles using the roads, Commerce Department figures show their average mileage is greater than all other categories combined.

THE BORN LOSER

By Art Sansom

Before bearbaiting was outlawed in 1835 because of its cruelty, it was a favorite pastime for centuries. The exhibitions usually took place on Sunday at theatre-like arenas usually called bear gardens. The bear was chained by the leg or neck to a stake and was harassed by dogs. Queen Elizabeth I once attended a bearbaiting in 1575.

Arnold From a Family of Politicians

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Richard S. Arnold's politically active family probably would not have let him stay away from politics if he had wanted to.

He didn't want to. And he decided to shoot immediately for one of the state's top political posts — the job of congressman in the sprawling 4th District.

"I've been thinking about this since I was five," Arnold said in formally announcing his candidacy at a news conference in Little Rock. "Some people are meant to be politicians and some are not. I guess I'll find out pretty quick if it was meant for me."

Arnold went into the race with two obstacles before him — his relative youth and his political inexperience.

He considers neither insurmountable.

"I'm old enough to have gained sound judgment, young enough to gain power for South Arkansas through (long) congressional service," he said.

He is 28, will be 30 in March.

And on inexperience: "I haven't held public office, but I've never been beaten either, because I haven't run."

Arnold has been busy for six months circulating around the 4th District, meeting potential supporters, making speeches where he can.

"Being unknown is an obstacle I'll have to surmount," he said. "But I know a lot more people now than I knew when I started."

Arnold looks five years younger than his 29 years. He is a neat, conservative dresser, leaning toward dark suits, vests and dark ties. He is soft spoken and at ease under questioning.

Arnold said he plans to campaign intensively until the election, whenever it might be. The Democratic State Committee meets Jan. 25 and it is expected to set a special primary March 13.

"It would be better for me if the election were later," Arnold said. "But I can't make the rules."

Arnold, a native of Texarkana, attended Texarkana schools through the ninth grade. Then, following the footsteps of his father, he matriculated at Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N.H. He was graduated from Yale University and Harvard Law School.

He was admitted to the bar in 1960 and worked for a year as law clerk to Justice William Brennan of the U.S. Supreme Court. He then practiced law in Washington for three years, returning to Arkansas in October 1964 to join the family firm, Arnold & Arnold, at Texarkana.

Arnold got involved in politics as soon as he got back in Arkansas.

"I stopped off in Little Rock on the way to Texarkana and picked up some Johnson-Humphrey campaign material," he said. "I worked for the entire Democratic ticket in 1964 and I will continue to do so."

The ticket included Gov. Orval Faubus and Arnold said he worked for the governor in his race against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller.

Arnold said he discussed his candidacy with Faubus and the governor said he would take part in the 4th District race. Faubus has appointed Arnold to the position publicly.

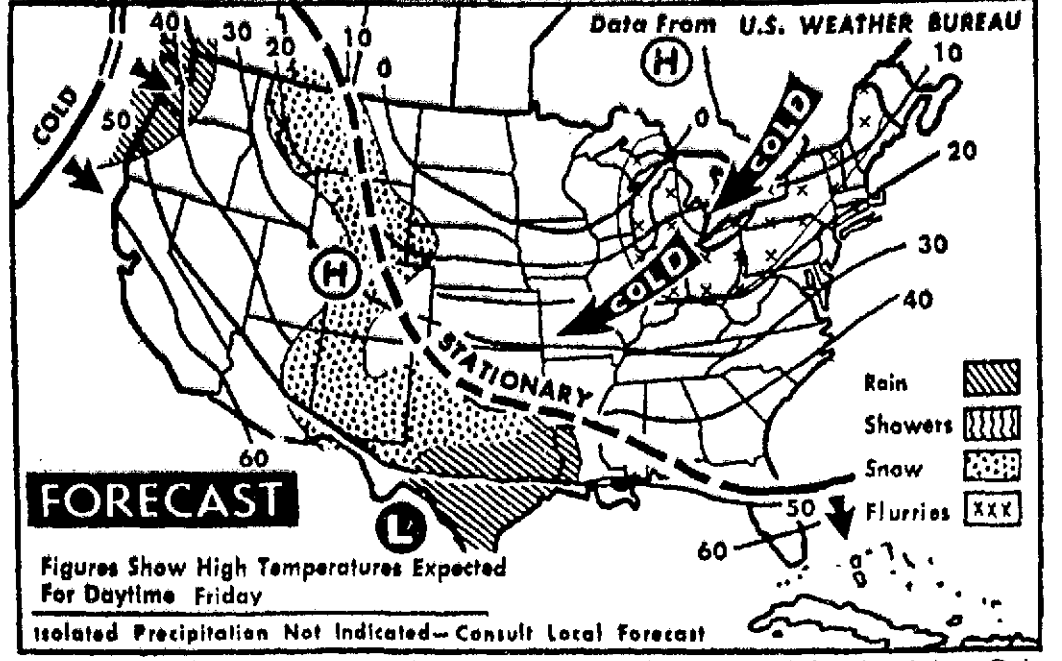

Arnold does not lack ability as an academic. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society and a member of the Phi Beta Kappa.

John McClellan Calls Union Boss's Spade a Spade

The United States Senate yesterday returned to our domestic war over the question whether or not to repeal Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act — the section which permits state governments to enact so-called right-to-work laws. Into yesterday's debate our Arkansas Senator John L. McClellan threw a blunt and courageous statement against repeal.

Said McClellan:

"Compulsion is an ugly word and compulsory association is the very antithesis of freedom. Thus, it is little wonder that proponents of repeal of Section 14 (b) attempt to substitute the term 'union security' for compulsory unionism and nothing substitute term they use, it can not conceal the truth — the fact that it is compulsory unionism and nothing else but compulsory unionism that union leaders seek through the repeal of section 14 (b)."

We had a thorough airing of the case for and against repeal in 1965, and the repeal move was beaten then, and probably will be beaten this time. It is true that the 1965 defeat was accomplished by a filibuster, and the same device is likely to be used this year. But the filibuster is a legitimate defense when you are threatened with an overwhelming force like the massed votes and propaganda machine of the national union bosses.

This is not strictly a fight for or against union labor. That fact is clear because repeal of section 14 (b) is sought most zealously by the political union bosses while the rank and file of organized labor is notoriously cool to the issues. For the rank and file voluntary unionism is sufficient. But it is not sufficient for the political bosses of the unions — they want the absolute power of compulsion in order to bolster their position on the national political scene.

The basic conflict, therefore, is between two philosophies of government — whether government shall become more and more a pawn of big organizations and big operators, or whether it will remember to defend the rights and freedom of individual citizens — to which principle this American republic was dedicated by our forefathers, who themselves were fugitives from the evils of the power grab in the Old Country.

Many Hours Awaiting on U. S. Jury

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, 72, sits in a small room on the 23rd floor of Chicago's new U. S. Courthouse, reading.

In an adjacent hall, Dr. Steven Durovic, 60, and Marko Durovic, 65, pace together, talking in low voices. Dr. William F. P. Phillips, 52, the fourth defendant in the Krebiozen fraud trial, consults with a patient in another room nearby.

The men have spent many of their daytime hours since Tuesday waiting while a federal district court jury ponders their guilt or innocence of the government's charges that they conspired to cheat cancer sufferers and violate federal laws.

The jury's deliberations, to resume at 10 a. m., today, have been recessed nightly while the jurors were sequestered in a hotel.

When the jury of five men and seven women left the building for the hotel Thursday night, it had spent 25 hours and 35 minutes pondering the evidence presented in nearly nine months of trial.

The case, the longest in the history of the federal court in Chicago, went to trial last April 28.

The government has maintained that Krebiozen is worthless in the treatment of cancer's developers, the prosecutors said, were conspirators in a massive scheme to defraud patients who accepted Krebiozen as their last hope.

The defense responded that Krebiozen is an aid in the control of cancerous cells and has benefited some cancer patients who were supplied by the Food and Drug Administration in 1963. But there are no legal limits on its use in Illinois.

Faubus Replies to Critics by Blasting Win

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus responded Thursday to attacks on two fronts and placed the blame for both on Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, who replied that Faubus tries to blame all his problems on the Republican Party.

Rockefeller said: "Every time someone cries foul at the way he is playing his game, the governor blames the whole thing on me. If he believes I am the only citizen of Arkansas capable of criticizing the incumbent administration, he is badly mistaken."

"Ever since the governor's $150 million bond proposal was defeated, he has been finding himself in increasing trouble with the people of Arkansas," Rockefeller said.

"Th attacks on Faubus came from Sam Boyce, president of the Arkansas Young Democrats, and in a lawsuit which charged that Negroes had to be approved by a private group in order to get a job in the state government."

Boyce accused the Faubus administration of "political treason" and "defaulted leadership" in a civic club speech at Helena Wednesday night.

Faubus hinted Thursday that the Boyce group is lining up candidates to oppose him and other officials and said he thinks there is a link between Boyce and the Republican Party.

Boyce called the governor's charges "radical and absurd." "Gov. Faubus does not seem to understand that there is a great deal of difference between supporting his administration and his personal candidacy and supporting the Democratic Party," Boyce said.

Boyce said that his political aspirations still center on the race for 3rd District prosecutor, "and this will be my only plan, but I would have to think about the situation again if the governor reconsiders his promise not to run for a seventh term." Boyce declined to elaborate.

"If anyone is assisting the Republican Party," Boyce said, "it is Gov. Faubus himself through maintaining not the Democratic Party but the 'Faubus party.'"

The suit regarding the hiring of Negroes was filed in U. S. District Court for Mrs. Mildred Medley Tennyson, 27, a former school teacher.

Faubus said Mrs. Tennyson's charges were false and said no private citizen or group rules on whether the state hires Negroes.

I. C. Bates, a member of a committee organized in November after a mid-summer conference with Faubus, said the governor has limited his hiring of Negroes for state jobs to only those who had the approval of the committee.

Bates said Faubus had hired a number of Negroes who the committee had approved, but added, "thus far, the governor has not hired any Negro that did not have the approval of the committee."

Mrs. Tennyson's suit says she took two merit system examinations and passed both.

Faubus said she is 36th on the register for one position and last on the register for the other.

Faubus said Republicans may be behind the lawsuit "to keep the administration busy, to take time from the efficient administration of state affairs."

Rockefeller was asked if the GOP was connected with the suit.

"No," he replied.

Mrs. Tennyson charged in the suit that she was told to get the approval of certain Negroes if she wanted the job.

Faubus said she was not told to see anyone.

Cong Unleashes Heavy Small Arms Pushes

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong unleashed heavy small-arms fire today as three Allied drives pushed deeper into the Communist-held coastal plain. It appeared to be the biggest eruption of fighting since the end of the lunar New Year truce on Sunday night.

Helicopters of the U. S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division came under intense fire as they landed troops north of Bong Son, a town on Route 1, lying 280 miles northeast of Saigon. Reports from the battle area spoke of repeated skirmishes. No casualties were reported yet.

A U. S. Air Force fighter-bomber supporting the cavalrymen crashed because of engine failure. The pilot bailed out and was picked up by helicopter.

Since opening Operation Masher three days ago, the cavalrymen have killed 37 Viet Cong and taken 65 prisoners, but today's action was the first major encounter with the guerrillas, a U. S. spokesman reported. The campaign took the Flying Horsemen out of the jungled central highlands into the rice fields overlooking the South China Sea.

A related operation 20 miles to the south by South Korea's Special Division continued to smoke out insurgents along Route 1, the country's main north-south highway which the Communists have long dominated. Korean officers reported 69 Viet Cong killed, 61 captured and 137 bunkers and caves blasted.

The U. S. Army's 101st Airborne Division, forming the third Allied spearhead, also encountered heavy Viet Cong rifle, automatic weapon and mortar fire as the paratroopers advanced north of Tuy Hoa, 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

South Korean marines and South Vietnamese troops joined the Americans in the brisk action in Operation Van Buren. The shooting tapered off at noon but continued sporadically.

South Vietnamese forces reported only one minor attack, four acts of sabotage and five harassments by the Reds in the past 24 hours. In Quang Tin Province more than 300 miles northeast of Saigon, government troops killed seven guerrillas in a mopping-up operation and took light casualties themselves, a spokesman said.

A U. S. spokesman said the American command had given up trying to find an explanation for the disappearance on Dec. 24 of two Marine F4B Phantom jets near the old imperial capital of Hue close to the northern border. The supersonic fighter-bombers completed their attack, climbed into thick clouds and were never seen again.

An investigation found no trace of the planes or evidence of ground fire. The four crewmen were listed as missing in action, the spokesman said.

The U. S. command also announced that the arrival of all elements of the 25th Infantry Division's two brigades had increased total U. S. forces in Viet Nam to 197,000 men. They include Army 126,000, Marines 20,000, Air Force 23,000, and 28,000 Navy personnel. 9,000 American women are with the forces.

Robert N. Hardin, 30, of Benton, filed for re-election as prosecuting attorney in the 7th Judicial District, which includes Saline, Hot Spring and Grant counties.

Judge Jim Merritt, a 58-year-old chancellor from McGehee, filed for re-election in the 2nd District, which is composed of Ashley, Bradley, Chicot, Desha and Drew counties.

Two candidates filed in the 2nd Judicial Circuit. Judge John Mosby filed for re-election in the 2nd Division. Mosby, 62, is from Lepanto.

Judge G. B. Colvin Jr., 55, of Dermott, filed for re-election in the 10th Judicial Circuit. It includes Ashley, Bradley, Chicot, Cleveland, Dallas and Drew counties.

Harris Leaves Congress Regretfully

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Oren Harris, D-Ark., told members of the U. S. House Thursday that his departure was tinged with regrets.

House members said farewell and good luck to Harris, who resigns next week to become a federal judge in Arkansas.

Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., headed the list of representatives who lauded Harris for his 25 years of service in the House.

Harris, making his final appearance in the well of the House, thanked his fellow members for their "many warm expressions."

"To have the respect and friendship of your colleagues is about the greatest reward one can have," Harris said. "I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Harris said he had already written his letter of resignation effective at the close of business on Feb. 2. He takes the oath as a district judge at El Dorado, Ark., Feb. 3.

Harris called his years in the House "a wonderful, warm, rewarding experience."

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., arranged for the tribute and said Harris placed as one of the great legislators of all times is assured.

Rep. E. C. Gallahue, D-Ark., said Harris had rendered "superb service" to his state and country. Laudatory remarks by Rep. J. W. Trimble, D-Ark., were placed in the record.

Thinks Program Could Aid Judges

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus says the proposed Ozarka development program could help county judges stop the migration to cities.

Faubus challenged the judges to make rural areas better places in which to live because Arkansas is a predominantly rural state.

"If we tarry much longer without proper roads, good schools and recreational facilities in rural areas, the trend (of emigration) is going to continue," Faubus said.

The governor addressed the judges at their annual convention.

Fulbright, Johnson Are Closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., says his personal relations with President Johnson "are excellent" and that no freeze exists between him and Johnson.

Fulbright said Thursday he deplored suggestions that any freeze existed between them.

Fulbright talked directly to Johnson at the White House Tuesday night for the first time since October. Fulbright declined to discuss the meeting other than to say Johnson was cordial.

Differences over foreign policy between Fulbright and Johnson developed when Fulbright said before the Senate that Johnson acted on faulty advice from U. S. diplomats in sending troops to the Dominican Republic.

Fulbright has said the United States should not resume bombing of North Viet Nam for the foreseeable future and also that it should make the Viet Cong "a legitimate party" to any conference to end the fighting.

Greeks Plagued by Strikes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek government went into action today to counter transport and bakery strikes, but the garbage still wasn't being picked up and streets weren't swept.

The government mobilized striking bus and trolley workers in Athens and Piraeus. The first buses rolled after midnight.

The country's 20,000 bakers struck Wednesday night for six days, and the government ordered soldiers and policemen with baking experience to man the ovens.

A strike by municipal workers throughout the country is in its fourth day, but so far the government has taken no action in that field.

All the strikers want more pay.

"We don't have any of the problems that we have now," he said Wednesday.

The kids did a good, swift kick in the pants and they were more respectful. Not like the kids of today with their fancy lawyers.

McClellan to Stay by People on Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Thursday that he would not "betray the trust" of the Arkansas people who adopted the state's right-to-work constitutional amendment.

McClellan, in a speech to the Senate, said labor leaders in Arkansas had asked him to vote to nullify the Arkansas law.

"If and when they, the people of my state, want to repeal the state's right-to-work constitutional amendment, they can do it with the same process by which they adopted it—by the ballot, in a legal election," McClellan said.

He said repeal of Section 14b of the National Labor Relations Act would lead to further erosion of the rights and liberties of millions of citizens.

The section of the act permits states to enact laws outlawing the union shop.

He said in a speech opposing repeal of the section that 14b only "serves to the people in each state... the power to enact laws prohibiting both employers and labor unions from making compulsory unionism a condition of employment."

He added, "Compulsion is an ugly word and compulsory association is the very antithesis of freedom."

McClellan said Arkansas' law treats union and non-union workers equally.

"It merely takes the middle ground — it disallows coercion one way or the other," he said.

He said the law makes the worker free to join a union and free not to join or support a union.

"The choice is his and his alone," McClellan said.

He said it was not right for labor leaders of Arkansas "to ask me to do here what the people of Arkansas can do in an election any time they want to do it."

He added, "But they have refused to do it in an election, and I shall refuse to do it here."
